Abstract

This paper presents a brief description of the structure and organization of the Section of Italian Studies as part of the Department of Foreign Languages, Linguistics and Literature within the Faculty of Human Sciences at the University of Iceland. In recent years, due to the variable number of students enrolled and to other financial reasons, the Section of Italian Studies has been compelled to make significant changes. However, the maintenance of the present standard of the Italian B.A. programme remains unsure and its future far from certain.
