ABSTRACT

In the Spanish verbal paradigm, only three verbs have a Present morpheme: the Present, the Present Perfect (in the auxiliary have) and the Periphrastic Future (in the construction go to). We are interested in these forms when they vary with: 1. the Present Perfect with the Preterite (he ido/fui); 2. the Periphrastic Future with the Simple Future (voy a ir/iré); 3. the Present in variation with prototypical past forms (voy/fui); and also 4. the Present in variation with prototypical future forms (voy a ir/iré). Based on the first results of our researches on type 1 variation (he ido/fui) our intention is go further in the explanation of the verbal paradigm in terms of Degrees of connection between the speaking sphere and the reference and the consequent impact on communication. For this reason, we focused on the analysis of 200 WhatsApp messages from speakers of Buenos Aires where we found the above mentioned cases.
